Oklahoma at Denver

By Fred W. Scothorn

Marching from their special train to the Brown Palace hotel, led by the Freeman Military band and cheered by countless thousands who lined the entire way; the scene more resembling the honored welcome home of some Victoria's army of patriotic citizens than the reception of a sister state, the Oklahoma delegation, graciously blending in closest harmony with every one from the snow-capped mountains of Maine to the sun-kissed plains of Texas; from the turbulent Atlantic to the creamy Pacific at the Golden Gate, opened the eyes of the political United States on Sunday July 6th, and majestically did they proclaim to the world how worthy the new state is of the honored place she holds on the azure field of the stars and stripes.

By the activity displayed by members of the delegation, the earnest desire to see the party win, and above all, to demonstrate the worthiness of their state, the headquarters were soon crowded with eager ones ready to learn of the latest star, and not only did the word Oklahoma be

BLOODY 4TH NATIONAL SLAUGHTER

CRIME COMMITTED IN NAME OF AMERICAN LIBERTY

YEARLY SACRIFICE ON ALTAR OF PATRIOTISM

Fourth of July Juggernaut Mows Down Its Victims By Hundreds

We are a patriotic people. That no one may doubt it, we make an annual demonstration of the virtue, killing off nearly a hundred of our innocent children and well-beloved youth, and maiming and torturing some three thousand more. This yearly sacrifice we make on the altar of that liberty whose name crimes are want to be committed. It is to be counted if there is a civilized nation on earth that gives such a spectacular and sanguinary exhibition of patriotism as we do. The pagan gods were able to inspire belief in the efficacy of torture—warship and a frenzy for the human burnt offering, but the victims were bold willing volunteers, nor was the fire supplied by fond, indulgent parents who sat serenely by and applauded the preparations. There are said to be benevolent countries in which still survive forms of idolatry that call for the sacrifice of life, but we send missionaries to those benighted people to try to win them from their cruel ways without our fourth of July juggernaut permitted to stalk from one end of the land to the other mowing down its victims.

If the devastation keeps up at the present rate, it will not be long before the death roll and list of the wounded will more than equal the total casualties of the war for independence, and our celebrations of Independence Day will have cost us more than independence itself. Imagine the wave of horror and excitement that would sweep the land were fatalities between the United States and some foreign nation to be presented by a conflict costing us 10,000 killed and wounded the sacrifice demanded by what we consider a proper celebration of the glorious誕生日 ("Honor the Maines") is the same from one such grim tragedy. It is not possible that the spirit of freedom demands the same toll in time of peace as in time of war.

Here and there an isolated reformation and then a journalist takes up the bloody farce we enact each fourth of July and calls upon the humane and rational to put a stop to it. Measured by results, there is no such thins as a sane and kindhearted, and at the same time patriotic American. At least, with the approach of July, he trembles becomes species of rabies and dethrones the faculties for the time being. Nobody seems to oppose anything definite against it. The politicians who make the laws or run their making have turned the fourth of July spirit and its whoop-and-hurrah to such account that no one dares peep for fear some one will raise the cry, "Interference with personal liberty." "Traitor," "Tory," "Anarchist." Occasionally local legislation devices a few restraints, but they are always in the interest of property saving, and not for the protection of life and limb.

Wore any one to announce that he had perfected an invention that would practically put an end to the sacrifice of life and limb in railway accidents, no would he be called a philanthropist; whenever a new serum is discovered that promises for any disease the immunity Pasteur held out to the dog-bitten, the world's acclaimed immortal, the scientist. Only a few days ago the press of the country gave prominence to the statement that sixteen lepers from the Louisiana colony had been discharged cured. All such diseases are classed as the wonderful beneficence of modern science, and no journey is too great, no expense too great, to letz humanity when life is at stake from the hope held out. It is inexcusable that the people who seemingly place such high value on life are the very same who provide their children with the deadly toy gun and giant cracker, powder and dynamite, to take chances with suffocation and death.

"I shall go into the church and steal money from somebody else," said the pilgrim, "for I have nothing to go home with." He went into the church and, seeing a man in the crowd with a wallet on his back, slipped his hand into it and pulled out his own stolen purse, with the exact sum he had left in it. He was so glad to find his enemy that he hurried off to tell the priest and the thief got away.—Warren Co. Fall Mall Gazette.

His American. "To think," said the visitor, "that you will have to go through life an ex-convict."

"Well, miss," replied Crowley Claude, "to tell you the truth, just as present there ain't nothing I'd like more to be."
